Opinion

Asthenoteratozoospermia, Asthenozoospermia, Oligoasthenoteratozoospermia, Oligozoospermia, Polyzoospermia, Teratozoospermia, Hormonal imbalance, abnormal sperm shape, varicocele and Teratozoospermia are terms associated with male fertility. Low sperm count-Oligospermia is a condition where less than 20 million sperm/ml are present in the ejaculate. Nil sperm count/Azoospermia. It is the term given to condition when there is absence of sperm/spermatozoa in the ejaculation.

Low motility-oligospermaesthesia

Oligospermia - Low Sperm Count - Oligospermia defined as less number of sperm in the ejaculate of the male or less than 20 million sperm per milliliter. Normal Sperm count: 20 million/millilitre to 120 million/millilitre. Sperm count below 20 million/ml called Oligospermia. Azoospermia is defined as the absence of spermatozoa in the ejaculation. Homeopathic medicine is very effective in the treatment of Low Sperm Motility, Low Sperm Count, Low Sperm Volume, Semen Viscosity, Abnormal Sperm cell Morphology, Anti Sperm Antibodies and combination of above ailments. As per Clinical data analysis done by Dr.Abhishek M.D (Homeopathy) infertility in males and Low sperm count is very common then most couples think. In India, the mindset is so developed, that in case a female is not getting pregnant, we tend to think its may be due to infertility on the part of female. But as per research, chances of male factor infertility are relevantly more. As per Dr.Abhishek M.D-Homeopathy, if any couple is trying to conceive from 1 year and not getting results positive for pregnancy, then both male and female should get themselves tested for infertility. We will be discussing in detail regarding male infertility here, Sperm count of 20 million or more along with healthy motility and morphology of the sperm is termed as normal. If a male find his sperm levels is less than 20 million or you are having issues with sperm morphology, motility or mobility then Homeopathy medicines can helpful to enhance sperm quality and quantity in most natural way.

Main causes of low sperm count

Electromagnetic frequencies: Research studies have proven that EMF, leads to rise in testicles temperature, which there by decrease sperm count. Dr.Abhishek advice not to keep mobile phones in the pocket.

Radio frequency electromagnetic waves: Clinical study shows that RF-EMWs emitted from wi-fi connectivity device damage sperm and plays a important role in decreasing sperm production and motility. RF-EMWs leads to increasing sperm DNA fragmentation.

Tobacco smoking: Tobacco smoking habit damages the morphology of sperm. But the good part is that harm done by tobacco smoking can be reversed, once a person quit smoking.

Pesticides: Now adays there is huge exposure to insecticides and pesticides in our food. Research study shows that pesticides mimic estrogen hormone and alter health production of sperms.

Meat and dairy products: Dairy animals are highly exposed to high level of estrogen hormone to increase the productivity, hence milk, milk products or animal meat of such animal alter normal semen production.

Soy foods: Isoflavones, is a type of phytoestrogen which is commonly found in processed soy food and research study have shown that isoflavone block estrogen receptor sites, which are required for testosterone.

Alcohol: Clinical study at Aura Homeopathy clinic shows that alcohol consumption for long term leads to decrease in quality and quantity of sperms. Hence alcohol consumption should be stoped completely.

Plastics: Avoide use of plastic utensils and container, as per study-when plastic utensils are over heated it release xenohormones and xenohormones mimic estrogen hormone in human body.

Hyperthermia: Dr.Abhishek advice that overheat may damage sperm, hence frequent use of hot tub bath and saunas whould be avoided. Further tight undergarments must be strictly avoided. Testicles hang to regulate the temperature which is favourable for healthy sperm production and no-a day's males wear tight clothing, even during sleep.

Stress: Mental Stress leads to hormone imbalance, which affect production of sperm.

Few Tips given By Dr. Abhishek

- Get your sperm analysis test every 3rd month.
- Avoide exposure to Electromagnetic frequencies, Radio frequency electromagnetic waves, insecticides, pesticides, tobacco smoking, food rich in soy, caned or packed food, alcohol, plastics utensils and carry bags, tight undergarments,

- hot tub bath, long duration bike riding and reduce mental stress.
- Eat healthy diet rich in nutrients good for sperm production and male reproductive system. These are selenium, zinc, vitamin B12, folic acid, L-Carnitine, vitamin E and food rich in antioxidants.
 - Get your male Hormone in Balance-Men can also get effected by hormonal imbalance. Testosterone is one of the main male hormone and due to present modern lifestyle it become imbalanced. Few pollutants which “mimic” estrogens for example xenohormones in human body results in decreasing testosterone. Further increased estrogen level in males may lead to Decreased libido or sex drive, ED- Erectile dysfunction, Decrease or low sperm count and Decrease seminal fluid production.

Few tips for balancing male hormones

- Avoid your exposure to xenohormones.
- Avoid non-veg food or Opt. for organic meats and dairy.
- Avoid eating soy foods.
- Detoxify your body with lots and lots of water and juices.
- Increase intake of fiber and cruciferous vegetables. Cruciferous vegetables contain certain element that helps the body to clean itself of estrogen excess.
- Avoid Influx of xenohormones: By avoiding foods containing soy protein, by avoiding Pesticides in food, by avoiding Estrogen hormones given to dairy animals and lastly by avoiding Use of plastic utensils.
