

Understanding Homeopathy through compensations

Opinion

Homeopathy has many wonderful attributes that are unique to homeopathy. Everyone that understands homeopathy from how it has been from the time that Samuel Hahnemann brought God's medicine to us that it is based on the strict proving's that all homeopathic substance go through and that the person is matched to a remedy based on their unique set of symptoms that match to the remedy.

To match a plant mineral, venom, etc. all things homeopathic remedies are created from, (in the one and only infinitesimal potency unique only to Homeopathy) to a person is never how it is done, as the crude matter simply will recreate itself onto a person, creating dissimilar symptoms, imagine how that would work on the delicate Vital Force (immune system).

In homeopathy one would never say here is Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis), because you are possibly coming down with something, is never how it would be done from the homeopathic standpoint, but seems to be an approach those in a 'new age-y mindset do it, this mindset is not new, it is the father of creation of hereditary disease.

But of course homeopathy is not simply physical symptoms that we are evaluating during our consultation, we are discovering the full uniqueness of the person we have in front of us. Each one of us has a part of ourselves, a chamber somewhere in us that is full of the complexities that we often hide from our selves and is how we view our world.

This is where homeopathy does its best work, all proven remedies have an active "mental picture" that is as strong, usually stronger, or maybe deeper is a better word than mere physical pictures, in health. Where as the physical pain is often easily pointed to, like the patient will point to a painful place and say here is where I am hurting, if there is a reason for the pain, they fell or the banded themselves somewhere, then you have a perfect causality and don't really have to question it, you find the remedy with little probing.

But when someone has a chronic issue that continually comes back, especially under, 'circumstances', such as every time they have a threat to their composure. We consider the pain as a compensation or unconscious reaction that elicits symptoms this can be considered a protective 'measure', yet at the end of the day it was formed so early in ones life rarely are they are unable to know what it is they are truly protecting themselves from.

Even an infant in utero is already forming this complex, and it continues into their early experience and onward. I won't get into the 'experiments' performed using sonograms, one in particular of a fetus covering its ears and crying during a feigned argument between its parents.

The physical life of a child that constantly living in a state of turmoil that life brings to us. As a feeling, the person makes a decision

Volume 11 Issue 4 - 2018

Kim Purdy C CH

Certified Classical Homeopath, Renaissance Institute of Classical Homeopathy, USA

Correspondence: Kim Purdy C CH, Certified Classical Homeopath, Renaissance Institute of Classical Homeopathy, USA, Email bodyworkkim@gmail.com

Received: June 20, 2018 | Published: July 10, 2018

it is either consciously or unconscious decision to find a place where they can store this pain and the 'folder' to store it in for whenever needed, would be in a 'pain complex.'

Outside the individual it would never matter if the pain were something someone else decides is inconsequential, or is something that anyone would be aghast, at what this person has endured.

The type of pain is never inconsequential.

The 'terrain', is the determining factor of how the person is able to respond as well as to what the end results can go. It can be functional pain or, it can be pain that is expressed in an excessive manner or it can be the road that leads to complete destruction.

The terrain is known as miasms, and a miasm is a predisposition to a type of effect that happens within and without the person. These miasms were formed throughout history via suppressive techniques, suppressive in that if the removal of symptoms is not followed by a restoration to health, it cannot be called a cure.

Homeopathy has always been referred to as "The Great Restorative", and restores is what it does, homeopathy can restore a defenseless child that for any reason whatsoever carries his complex.

The peeling away of the layers of the pain complex is done with the homeopathic remedy and if done correctly by a practitioner aware of the dangers of trying to remove a pain complex with the found 'Simillimum', the results are a new life, re-emerged from what could be a full life term of needless suffering.

Acknowledgements

None.

Conflict of interest

The author declares no conflict of interest.